

Dundonald Churchyard

A record of pre-1855 Tombstone inscriptions

Recorded August 1972 by Robert Kirk

On entering the Church gates the rows are numbered in a clockwise direction running south to north and commencing at the south end of each row south being the manse end of the churchyard. In recent years vandalism has been the cause of the loss of a number of gravestones and any further destruction may alter the numbers as they appear on the records. Unless otherwise stated, the gravestones all face east and the rows should be fairly easy to follow. Several references are made to two local histories R.A.L. and D.P.S. They are :-

R.A.L. = 'Retrospective of and Artists life' by J. Kelso Hunter. First published in 1867 and reprinted by the Kilmarnock Standard Press in 1912.

D.P.S. = 'Dundonald, The Parish and its Setting' by Rev. Jas. H. Gillespie. First published in 1939 by John Wylie & Co., Glasgow. In Vol. II page 527 a chapter is given to 'Churchyards burying places and their customs' and the author states there is an Adam and Eve stone near the south east corner of the church. The oldest date on any visible stone is 1677 and for whatever reason that particular stone is in no way defaced or decayed. Now in 1972 there is no trace whatsoever of any of the two gravestones.

The Dundonald Register begins in 1673 and now rests at New Register House Edinburgh.
